Laura Gonzalez is an associate clinical professor whose area of research focuses on using simulation for knowledge acquisition. Her research looks at new ways to educate nurses using technologies such as high-fidelity simulation, Augmented Reality (AR) and Virtual Reality (VR).

“These technologies far outreach the education of the past, and can reframe education in the future,” she says.

Gonzalez shares that the use of innovative technology in nursing education is key to improving performance and saving lives."